Carpathians in Serbia are the most southern part of Carpathian massive

It is a mountain range in eastern Central Serbia.

It presents an extension of proper Carpathian Mountains across the Danube, connecting them with the Balkan Mountains in the southeast.

Carpathian region is well connected with the Alpine, Danube, Adriatic-Ionian, Balkan region...

Its rich cultural heritage provides another opportunity for cooperation directed towards integrative preservation of cultural and natural heritage of the region, but also it can be a way to preserve and interpret, communicate and revitalize heritage of the central and southern Europe.
